THE PHILIPPINES' previously denounced China's decision to strengthen its claim at the center of territorial disputes in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) as a violation of international law.

"Sansha City has been a subject of a Philippine protest as its administrative jurisdiction encompasses Philippine territory and maritime zones in the West Philippine Sea," the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) said, referring to China's announcement that it would develop Woody Island in the Prata and other islands in the region that the Philippines and other Southeast Asian countries are disputing.

"China's action to fortify Sansha City is an attempt to interfere in extensive sovereign claims, which is a violation of international law, especially the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS)." DFA said.

CBCP to push probe of voting machines

CBCP CITY—The president of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) believes the computerized voting machines successfully used in the 2010 elections are flawed and he wants them thoroughly examined before they are used in next year's national election.

DOGS, CALIFORNIA—A veterinarian has some good news about a dog from the Philippines that became an international hero after being its master in saving two young girls.

Gina Davis, a veterinarian with the University of California at Davis, told the San Francisco Chronicle that the dog, named "Kabang," appears to have beaten the cancer it was suffering from.

Kabang, a 3-year-old female street dog whose name means "spotty," still lives in a small house in her hometown where she can have the puppy around on her face.

The Government is pursuing its commitment to provide Convenient, Affordable, Reliable, Efficient, and Safe transport services. As such, the DOTC is inviting interested parties to participate in the OPEN and TRANSPARENT bidding process for the construction of a new passenger terminal in Mactan-Cebu International Airport.

 Ugnay, Masaganap at Maayos ang Paglalakbay

INVITATION TO PRE-QUALIFY AND BID P17.5 B MACTAN-CEBU INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT NEW PASSENGER TERMINAL PROJECT

The Mactan-Cebu International Airport (MIA) is the second largest airport in the Philippines in terms of passenger traffic. In 2011, MIA handled 6.2 million passengers despite the design capacity of the existing terminal of only 4.5 million passengers. MIA clearly needs to expand, especially since passenger traffic has grown by an unprecedented rate of 13% for the last 10 years.

The Department of Tourism also anticipates 10 million tourists to visit the country by 2016. With Cebu's strategic location and being one of the favorite tourist destinations, a surge of both local and international visitors is expected in the years to come. The development of MIA is therefore crucial.

With this in mind, the DOTC and Mactan-Cebu International Airport Authority (MCIAA) are inviting Prospective Bidders to apply to pre-qualify and bid to finance, design, construct, operate, and maintain the new passenger terminal development project. The project scope primarily consists of:

1. Construction of a new passenger terminal, along with all related infrastructure and facilities as per International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) standards;
2. Construction of an apron for the new passenger terminal;
3. Renovation and expansion of the existing terminal along with all related infrastructure and facilities as per International ICAO standards to handle domestic operations;
4. Installation of all the required equipment and other related facilities as per International ICAO standards;
5. Installation of the required IT and other equipment commensurate with the operations; and
6. Operation and maintenance of both the passenger terminals during the entire concession period.

The DOTC/MCIAA reserves the right to accept or reject all or any Application to Pre-Qualify and to Bid at its discretion. Prospective Bidders shall bear all costs associated with their participation in the Bidding Process including the preparation and submission of their Pre-Qualification Documents, and all possible losses or damages resulting therefrom. The DOTC/MCIAA shall not be held responsible or liable in any way for such costs regardless of the results of the Bidding Process.

➤ The project will be awarded through competitive public bidding process under two-stage public bidding process and its execution shall be governed by the Philippine Build Operate Transfer (BOT) Law (RA 671), as amended by the Republic Act No. 7179 (BOT Law) and its Implementing Rules and Regulations (IRR) (RA 671-IRR).

➤ In this process, Prospective Bidders shall submit their Pre-Qualification Documents, by the Pre-Qualification Documents Submission Date to pre-qualify to participate in the Bidding Process. Prospective Bidders who fulfill the requirements to pre-qualify shall be considered as Pre-Qualified Bidders. Only the Pre-Qualified Bidders shall be allowed to submit a Bid for the Project concession.

➤ Bidding is open to interested parties, subject to the conditions to eligibility under the BOT Law and the operation documents. The Invitation Documents consisting of (i) the Invitation to Pre-Qualify and Bid, (ii) the Application to Pre-Qualify Bidders and its form, and (iii) Pre-qualification documents will be available starting 11:00 AM on Tuesday, November 27, 2012 at the DOTC/MCIAA, Manila and Cebu Offices, Philippines. The submission of completed forms from 27 December 2012 to 25 February 2013.

➤ The Invitation Documents will be issued to Prospective Bidders upon the payment by the Prospective Bidders of a non-refundable fee of P100,000 cash or bank deposit which shall be used to bid to the Philippines and to the Department of Transportation and Communications.

➤ Only entities who have purchased the Invitation Documents shall be allowed to participate in the Pre-qualification and the Bidding Process.

Christmas in the boondocks, barracks

By Dello T. Mallat Jr.
Luzon City

FOR PROTAGONISTS in the bloody counter-insurgency still raging in the country's rural areas for the past four decades, Christmas is not only one involved moment to temporarily renounce their guns.

Just like my other Filipino counterparts around the world, they also long for the company of families back home—the traditional Filipino celebration, warm hugs and kisses, warmers food, joyful atmosphere and the genuine feeling of peace and comfort.

As Alvin, a New People's Army (NPA) guerrilla, recalled the Christmas he left when the special Christmas away from his family for the first time six years ago, the feelings to the epidemic Marikina Communist uprising in Davao.

"I have lots of fond memories of Christmas back home. I really missed it then," he said. The 36-year-old said the happiness in one's mind is not enough to get one of their urban-based comrades. There was a modest reason before he decided to estimate the hard life of a rebel.

In Alvin, recalled how she and her siblings would jump at the sound of midnight before partaking of the holiday delicacies prepared by their mother on the dining table. "Specially, fruit salad and meat (chicken poultry) were our all-time favorites," she said.

Alvin, a member of the New People's Army (NPA) guerrilla, recalled the Christmas he left when the special Christmas away from his family for the first time six years ago.

Alvin P. Bionio Villanueva, a member of the 74th Infantry Battalion based in Marikina, Quezon, also long to embrace his wife and his 8-month-old daughter.

"With my three years in the service, this is my first Christmas. I miss I wish I can be with my wife and baby girl in this special day for the family. But I have to face the truth that in my chosen field—it is duty first," Villanueva said in a phone interview with Inquirer.

Villanueva, 25, a native of Marikina, La Union, started his military life in February. His family lives in La Union.

Just like Alvin, the soldier misses the past Christmas season with his family. His father, a farmer, never failed to provide them with holiday food and winter delicacies on Christmas Day, he said.

"We always have lunch around (meat chicken) and fried chicken on the table, eating with the whole family was full of fun," said Villanueva, the soldier in the front office.

Music and camaraderie

The soldier left his hometown three years ago and joined the Army. "I really want to be a soldier. Perhaps because of the influence of other men, many who also became soldiers about me," he said.

Asked how they cope with being away from their loved ones at the camp when family reunions are being held everywhere, both Villanueva and Alvin said they have learned to accept that their comrades and loved ones are not there around family.

In Alvin said the world spend Christmas with the poor villagers with struggle. "The lack of money Christmas cards, their families in Baguio are struggling (Christmas has Arrived) ... But there is no delicious food on the table. It's just (meat) with vegetables is already a feast," he said.

His comrades would spend the whole night singing, making merry songs and dancing in an occasion called "Kalusugan Piling" throughout the "Kalusugan Without Fear," in which everyone must perform, according to Alvin.

"We don't have Christmas lanterns in the traditional manner since because of the absence of electricity but the good mood and warmth of every member of the battalion and the village are very meaningful and memorable," Alvin said.

Children in NPA areas also receive Christmas gifts from guerrillas, just like those elsewhere, he said.

"Since we don't have money to spend, we just sing to them. But even if we don't give them material gifts, our love to the children and even to their parents is more than in the material things (gifts)," he said.

Unlike the urban practice in the mountains by their adversaries, soldiers inside Army headquarters may attend to cograte in the traditional manner like elsewhere in Christmas.

Villanueva said all of his comrades contributed the food and other goodies for the party.

"We also open the camp for the children in the community. They sing holiday songs and ask for money in a gift, which we readily give. It's really fun. It brings the families from our respective families," he said.

But leaving the camp for the winter party operations is another matter, the soldier explained.

Lonely and cold

"The time out of the camp on Christmas isn't really lonely and warm. It's cold and there because we don't know when it will happen now," Villanueva said.

Alvin said she had been many times but finally he is long but she cannot forget his decision to become a full-time fighter.

"There is no reason because I believe that since the revolution, I can again feel the warm embrace of my loved ones. Time will come when a true Christmas will prevail, where we will get things where everyone will share each other's grace and peace, with family again," he said.

Asked by his Christmas wish, Villanueva said give for peace but in a military context, the way to that is to Alvin.

"Now I wish that the NPA, which target their life and stop this academic revolution so that we can all go home to our families and live in peace," he said.

The government was also claimed more than 40,000 lives, according to government figures. Despite a series of peace talks by successive presidents, peace remains elusive.

Talks between the government and the communist-led National Democratic Front of the Philippines (NDFP) have been stalled since 2004. Both parties are reluctant in pushing for their respective demands. Talks before the start of the negotiations.

The NDFP has been demanding the release of detained communist rebels, which the government rejects.

The government and the Communist Party of the Philippines agreed to a 27-day holiday truce from Dec. 20, 2012, to Jan. 15, 2013, to help restart the peace process.

In line with DOTC's aim of providing the people with Convenient, Affordable, Reliable, Efficient and Safe Transport system, the Department is inviting Prospective Bidders to participate in the Pre-Qualifying bid in the OPEN and TRANSPARENT procurement process of the Contactless Automatic Fare Collection System project below:

Light, Movement or After Key?

DOTC

P1.72 B CONTACTLESS AUTOMATIC FARE COLLECTION SYSTEM INVITATION TO PRE-QUALIFY TO BID

Metro Manila is currently being served by three Urban Rail Transit Systems, namely the Light Rail Transit Line 1 (LRT-1), the Light Rail Transit Line 2 (LRT-2) and the Metro Rail Transit Line 3 (MRT-3), with over one million commuters using these lines daily.

The magnetic stripe-based ticketing systems currently in use are nearing the end of their usability. Because of this, there is a need for a new ticketing system. The DOTC aims to procure an Interoperable Contactless Automatic Fare Collection System (AFCS) based on smart card technology. The tap-and-go system will facilitate efficient passenger transfer to other rail lines, and enhance fare collection efficiency by reducing leakage and fraud. The AFCS can easily be expanded to other transport modes and systems, such as buses, and toll roads among others.

In line with this, the DOTC invites Prospective Bidders to submit applications to pre-qualify in bidding to finance, design, construct, operate, and maintain the Contactless AFCS Project. The Project consists of:

1. Designing, development, installation and implementation of the new AFCS system based on contactless smart card (credit card size) technology that meets:
 - a. ISO 14443 A/B standards for the stored value ridership;
 - b. ISO 14443 A/B single journey media for the single journey ridership.
2. Provision of contactless media (cards/tokens) for use in the light rail transport network;
3. Maintenance of the AFCS system for LRT-1, LRT-2 and MRT-3 for a Concession Period of ten (10) years beginning from Full Systems Acceptance; and
4. Operation of the AFCS Central Clearing House.

The Invitation Documents, consisting of

He said the Philippines would stand united with its political, legal and diplomatic powers to resolve its claims in the South China Sea. He said the Philippines would stand united with its political, legal and diplomatic powers to resolve its claims in the South China Sea.

The Philippines, Brunei, Malaysia and Vietnam claim parts of the sea that is home to oil and gas reserves and is a source of income for all of them.

Tensions also exist partly of the sea, mostly all of which China insists is part of its territory.

$1.4-billion investment

In a report on Monday, business and financial news agency Bloomberg quoted the 21st Century Business Herald as saying that China had approved plans to invest at least $1.5 billion to build an airport, port and other infrastructure on islands involved in territorial disputes with its Southeast Asian neighbors.

The report quoted Xinhua, government of China's Vietnam government, as saying that the plan was intended to "lay the foundation for the island's development in the long term."

"Santha's immediate work is for airports, ports, power and other important infrastructure, as well as law enforcement, supply ships and other projects to be established," Jung was quoted as saying in a statement.

"In the long term, we need to have a platform for Santha's development," Jung added.

Garrison town

Santha is a garrison town on Woody Island, one of the 16,000, 300 and 600 islands that Vietnam is claiming in the South China Sea. It is part of the area that is under the jurisdiction of Hainan province.

Meanwhile, still quoting the 21st Century Herald, said the South China Sea islands would also be used as military law enforcement and security facilities and that construction of new facilities had already started.

The Philippines and Vietnam have protested China's expansion of its islands.

China built Santha in June for the administration of the Hainan province. The 300 and 600 islands jurisdiction covered the Kailashan Island Group in the Spratly Islands, which is an integral part of the Philippines territory. It is the responsibility of Hainan province.

"This is the reason, the Philippines does not recognize Santha City and the extent of its jurisdiction," he said. He said the Philippines would stand united with its political, legal and diplomatic powers to resolve its claims in the South China Sea.

New border rules

In late November, Vietnam government announced new maritime rules that would allow its boats to enter the South China Sea to fish and to conduct maritime research.

The new rules, believed to have been approved from Beijing, would come into effect in January. China also issued a new maritime law in January.

During the entire month of January, the Philippines and Vietnam have protested the new maritime rules and the map on the new Chinese passport and referred to many years on it.

Other members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations have expressed their concern over the new Chinese maritime rules and said that it would lead to increased tensions in the region.

The United States, which has declared that it is "not a party" to the new Chinese maritime rules, has also expressed its concern over the new border rules.

Eating on job proves costly for grocery 'bagger'

By Nancy C. Canajal

IT SEEMED like a self-paid job to pay for a grocery bill, but it was a grocery bill that was the problem.

For eating a bag of potato chips worth P20.00, he allegedly made ends on day, as 30-year-old "bagger" of a popular supermarket chain in Marikina, Manila, spent Christmas Day in jail.

He is still under detention, a report signed by Judge Jesus Abad, Marikina Justice Center, Marikina, who said that the man was charged for 30 days for allegedly eating a bag of potato chips.

The incident also led to a fall in his department and probably others that were reportedly forced from duty by the judge, according to Marikina Justice Center.

"The chief (Abad) said he could not be interviewed because he had already been subjected to an arrest," the judge said.

Young also could not produce any document to show why he was still in jail three days after he was released from the jail.

According to Marikina Justice Center who released him in jail yesterday, his parents had appealed to the supermarket's management to forgive him, especially since it was Christmas.

"Management won't really agree to this because eating on the job, even if it is just a piece of candy, is a ground for termination," a cousin of Young, who declined to be identified, told the Inquirer.

She said that based on Young's statement to be security guard, the management of the store was able to find the chips.

After Young was caught, all the supermarket's employees were again required to attend a whole-day orientation on company policies, she added. "Employees were especially interested in not allowing, even candy, when eating on the job," she said.

Women reeling from 'Ondoy,' heavy debts share lotto prize

Caloocan designates firecracker zones

THE CALOOCAN City government has ordered the designation of firecracker zones throughout the city as welcome program to greet the New Year with a bang.

Mayor Romeo Trillanes said he had ordered the city's 100 barangays to designate their respective firecracker zones at open areas away from houses and other establishments where residents could safely light up fireworks and firecrackers.

"This is for the benefit and safety of our residents themselves, so we hope everyone follows this as we can have a safe New Year celebration," Trillanes said.

Police and civilian public safety units will be deployed to check compliance and anyone caught lighting of firecrackers outside the zones will be penalized, he said.

Caloocan, which is the second largest city in Metro Manila, is the second local government unit after Pasig City to initiate such measures in the Calabarzon area.

CHRISTMAS was indeed merry for three lucky lotto betters who claimed their winnings at the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) headquarters in Pasig City on Wednesday.

They picked the winning combination, 3-3-22-17-18-66-26, in the MegaMillions draw on Dec. 19, for which they received P18.3 million each in a three-way split of the P36.6 million jackpot.

The winning was first publicized especially for two of the winners who shared their win events with a PCSO official when they showed up to get their money.

In a statement, PCSO General Manager Jose Ferdinand Sison II said one of the winners, a 30-year-old resident of two towns in Marikina province, broke into tears of joy at the center he shared.

Sison said the woman's family is very content and a better condition in the household due to unpaid loans, and she and her children are off to school after her husband, an overseas worker based in Saudi Arabia and the family's sole breadwinner, stopped sending them money to school.

Another winner, a 50-year-old housewife from Laguna province, said she and her husband continued to struggle financially after losing their home during the 2009 killer storm "Ondoy" the PCSO official said.

The couple and their only child were still staying at an evacuation center when the woman thought the lucky ticket.

The woman plans to use part of the prize money to buy a house and to send her son to his child's education. They had already also accepted a government loan.

The third lotto winner was a 33-year-old teacher of five and a full-time agent from Marikina, Marikina, who had been trying his luck on the state lottery since the late 80s, Sison said. Agency T Guard

Hawkish Abe elected Japan's new PM

TOKYO—Shinzo Abe was elected Japan's prime minister by the lower house of parliament on Wednesday after he swept to power on a hawkish platform of getting tough on diplomacy while fixing the economy.

The 60-year-old Abe started his 18-year stint as the country's new leader following a four-day national election victory for Abe's Liberal Democratic Party earlier this month over the Democratic Party of Japan (DPP).

"This chamber, Andon in name, Mr. Shinzo Abe as prime minister," said lower house speaker Naoto Tanaka after the vote.

Leadership contest in 2012 lasted by 528 votes to 57 for the DPP newly elected leader Banri Kato, the industry minister during last year's Fukushima nuclear crisis.

After the election, the vote counted against the dollar on growing speculation that the back of Japan will take to further easing measures to boost the economy—a key plank of Abe's campaign.

In Japan's seventh period to last three years, Abe as prime minister since 2006, who suffered a string of setbacks at the polls.

The party, which came to power in 2009, was seen as being weakened by policy blunders and in-house leadership of last year's nuclear disaster at Fukushima.

As expected, Abe's cabinet reshuffled on Monday following a narrow victory for the DPP over the Liberal Democratic Party in the 2012 election.

Abe, who previously served as prime minister from 2006 to 2007, is expected to lead a new cabinet less likely to take to the back of Japan's budget to boost the nation's flagging economy.

Japanese media have suggested Abe was likely to lead close associates and senior party members as key posts.

This time, another former prime minister in Japan's conservative political arena was widely expected to be named as both Abe's deputy and also finance minister, the report said.

Now foreign minister will likely be Shinzo Abe's ally, who served as a state minister in charge of Okinawa affairs during Abe's previous tenure.

This is a close political ally who served as finance minister, who served as deputy foreign minister for a year during Abe's last term in Japan's top political job and during that his recent tenure as Finance Minister.

is expected to become justice minister.

Abe was conservative support with nationalist commitments on diplomacy in the middle of a worldwide move with Beijing and other nations of East China sea island, saying Japan would stand firm on its claim in the straits.

He quickly moved down the economic agenda and said he would improve ties with China, Japan's biggest trading partner.

After called for a solution through talks he described as "patient exchanges."

The new leader, whose key campaign platform was moving the world's third largest economy, also said he would look at revising Japan's power profile construction, increasing efforts in China and South Korea.

He also promised to promote the Bank of Japan's earlier easing measures to boost growth, while also promising his government spending to spur the economy.

Strong peso threatens BPO sector

Outsourcing to PH now said to be 30% more expensive than India

By Paolo G. Manzano

THE GROWTH of the local business process-outsourcing (BPO) industry is under threat due to the strengthening of the peso, which has already taken away "low cost" as one of the Philippines' biggest advantages over competitors like India and China.

In a statement last week, the local mass processing Association of the Philippines (MPAP) said that outsourcing to the Philippines is now 30 percent more expensive than India due to the strong local currency.

"With the 30 percent difference in process and Indian major exchange rate with the US dollar, the cost differential has substantially widened," MPAP president Benedicto Hernandez said. "And that is much more difficult to manage."

He added, it also pointed out the Call Center Association of the Philippines (CCAP), which group comprises the provider to voice-based services.

Citing analysis by EY, a global strategy and consulting firm, the Philippines' strengthening peso and the combination of an appreciating peso and a depreciating Indian rupee had provided India with a meaningful cost advantage.

A survey of BPO members on the impact of the strengthening peso revealed that 45.7 percent of respondents said it had been more difficult to hit their respective revenue targets.

Regardless to the survey, which was conducted last week, the cost they had lost some business to other destinations (40 percent) or reduced expansion plans (40 percent).

The industry, which contributed much to the domestic economy, usually helped drive up the peso's value, the member said.

Southeast Asia has become a preferred destination for global portfolio investors as a result of sustained weakness in developed economies, the member explained.

"Investment inflows need to be increased to drive the flow of capital, including peso.

As returns on PH markets rise, so do risks

By Daniel L. Lucas

Special Report

ALL THROAT of one of the largest stock-based hedge funds in the country, Canada-based First Capital, is now looking at the virtues of investing in the Philippine stock exchange.

However, First Capital—who heads COO, Michael Gueo and its popular on-line trading platform, GlobalOnline.com—is more cautious, saying that the fund for returns of some investors in the local market seems to be beyond the ability of stock prices to achieve.

"People have to be realistic," he said in an interview with the Inquirer. "We have to temper expectations."

First Capital advised its clients to look to the local stock market of the United States, which used to be one of the largest and most influential stock exchange firms in the country.

The way it is better when the S&P 500 had been financial crisis hit—a financial meltdown caused by several, mostly high expectations that began in the property market, leading over to the stock market, before finally making its way to the corporate and consumer sectors.

But, he believes that the strong performance of stocks this year was due largely to investors being lured by the vigorous performance of the Philippine economy, punctuated by the 7.1 percent gross domestic product (GDP) growth in the third quarter.

"But the kind of GDP growth is unsustainable," he said, pointing to the large role that construction of high-rise buildings played in the previous quarter's economic performance.
